SAW CRIME IN A DREAM

Curious Forewarning of Her
Chum's Murder.

Awakened From Sleep, Omaha
Girl Told of Vision Which Came True.

OMAHA, Oct. 21.—Less than a half hour before Miss Josephine Rummelhart, of this city, was attacked and murdered by an unknown colored man, her intimate friend and roommate, Miss Mary Laphard, foresaw the tragedy in a dream.

Springing from her bed about twelve o'clock on the night of the murder, her face pale as death, a look of terror in her wide-open eyes, Miss Laphard cried:

"Josephine Rummelhart is being murdered! Help! Help! Oh, can you not save her!"

Several women, attracted by her cries, ran to Miss Laphard's room, finding her excitedly pulling the floor wringing her hands, and declaring that her friend and roommate had been killed.

"I saw a colored man knock her down, drag her into an alley, and there out her throat," she cried. "Oh, it is awful, awful!"

"You have been dreaming, Mary," said one of her friends. "Miss Rummelhart has gone out to spend the evening with Miss Anderson, but she is all right and will return to her room soon."

"Yes, I have been dreaming," said Miss Laphard, "but the dream was so vivid and I saw it so plainly that it seems true to me yet."

The young woman was persuaded to return to her bed on the assurance that Miss Rummelhart would soon return to her room, and by and by she fell asleep.

Learned of Crime in Morning.

When she awoke in the morning she instantly recalled her dream of the night before, and, glancing at Miss Rummelhart's bed, across the room from her own, she was startled to see that it had not been occupied.

Dressing hastily, she went downstairs and picked up a morning paper. The first words that caught her eye were three in a "saw head," telling of the cold-blooded murder of Miss Rummelhart the night before.

The murder had been committed less than half an hour after Miss Laphard had awakened the household by springing from her bed any crying that her friend and roommate was being murdered. Only two blocks from her rooming house and but seven blocks from the heart of the business district of Omaha, the young woman, on her way home from the house of a neighbor, had been knocked down by a negro, dragged, bleeding and unconscious, to a dark spot in the rear of one of the houses in the neighborhood, further maltreated, and then murdered.

The negro cut her throat with a razor and then made his escape.

Two young men, W. B. Hughes and Paul Lewis, residing in the house in the rear of which Miss Rummelhart was left by her slayer, attracted by the dying woman's screams, discovered her a few minutes after the negro had made his escape. They promptly notified the police of the discovery and the young woman was taken to a hospital, where she died a few hours later without regaining consciousness.

Mistaken Identification.

A curious case of mistaken identity occurred the morning after the murder. Hundreds of people went to the morgue to see the body of the murdered woman. Among those who went there was Charles W. Ward, a veteran grocer and confectioner of the city. The moment Ward glanced at the face of the dead woman he grew deathly pale, staggered back as if he had been shot, and cried that the body was that of his daughter, Miss Wilkes Ward.

Bowed with grief, Ward set out for his home to break the dreadful news to his wife. On opening the door to his house the first person to greet him was the daughter whom he had believed to be dead. She had gone to the theater with a young lady friend the night before and, missing the last car for her own home, had spent the night with her friend, arriving home a few minutes before her father arrived there to break to his wife the news of her death.

The murderer of Miss Rummelhart has not been captured. Several large rewards have been offered for his apprehension.

NEW ISLAND DISCOVERED

A volcanic island has just come to the surface from the depths of the Pacific ocean, writes J. Mayne Balfour in the November Technical World Magazine. When we are accustomed to think of geographical changes in terms of thousands of years, and the countries that we know were formed centuries ago before historic times, an island which was born within the present year becomes the center of the world's interest. Fishermen came to Dawson City, Yukon, in the early summer, and told of great clouds of steam and smoke around the Alaskan group of islands, and said that the water was seething and boiling for miles around. Later, after the first commotion had ceased and the smoke partially cleared away, an island was discovered in the midst of this tremendous devil's cauldron, and it is now thought that the faithful 6th of last April when San Francisco was rattled by earth quakes, was the birthday of the new island. Recently the United States revenue cutter Perry was cruising in these waters and several officers from the boat landed on the island at considerable risk. They found the island to be about 700 feet high and about 600 feet in diameter. They sent in a partial report to the department with the statement that more definite information would be furnished as soon as the land had cooled sufficiently to allow surveying to be done.

LANGDON'S NEW MOVE

His Announcement of the Investigation.

Letter Assures Thoroughness
and Says Rudolph Sprek-els is Raising Money.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Following is the text of an open letter written by District Attorney W. H. Langdon in making known the appointment of Francis J. Heney as assistant, with the purpose of exposing official corruption in this city.

"I view of the present extraordinary conditions prevalent in the city and county of San Francisco, the unusual increase in crime which threatens to grow worse as the winter sets in, and in view of the numerous charges of official graft and malfeasance in office, I have determined to take the opportunity presented by the impeachment of a new grand jury, which has been set down for next Wednesday by Thomas F. Graham, the presiding judge of the Superior court in the city and county of San Francisco, to inaugurate a systematic and thorough investigation into these conditions."

"It is my official duty to do so, and in view of the magnitude of the task, I have decided to seek the best assistance obtainable. It is my purpose to set at rest these charges of official graft by either proving them false or convicting those who are guilty. If the charges be untrue, their falsity should be demonstrated to the world, so as to remove these impressions which have been circulated to the injury of the credit and fair name of the city. If they be true, we should show to the country that is enough strength, virtue and civic pride in our people to enable the regularly constituted machinery of justice to establish conditions on a clean, righteous and just basis, without resort to any extraordinary expedients outside the law."

"This is to be an honest, fair, thorough and searching investigation. We shall protect no man, but we shall prosecute every man who is guilty, regardless of position or standing in the city. In order that we may have the benefit of expert services in this work I have requested Francis J. Heney, who has won national fame for his work in the prosecution of the Oregon land fraud cases, to become a regular deputy in my office. Mr. Heney has accepted. It is unfortunate that this work should be commenced during a political campaign, but the conditions which exist in San Francisco today require that radical action be taken at once, and though I may be charged with prejudging this investigation at this particular juncture for political advantage, I must ask the public to judge me by the results attained, which will be the best answer."

"I am not unmindful of the great difficulties involved in this investigation. It will be both laborious and costly. The money available under the appropriations made to the district attorney's office and the grand jury is, of course, utterly inadequate. Often previous investigations by other grand juries have been made abortive because of this lack of necessary funds to meet expenses."

"In the present instance we shall not suffer this severe handicap. I am authorized to announce that Rudolph Sprekels has guaranteed that he will personally undertake the collection of funds from public-spirited citizens of a fund to provide for the expenses necessary to make the investigation thorough and so that good results may ensue. The city is in deep affliction consequent upon the dreadful calamities of last spring; it is in danger from a veritable increasing invasion of desperate criminals from all over the world. Some of the public departments are undoubtedly in bad hands, and I appeal to my fellow citizens to give this investigation their moral support, so that the innocent may be protected, so that the guilty may be punished and so that San Francisco may be helped to her feet and started again on the high road of prosperity in her material conditions and have restored decency, efficiency, honesty and honor in her public affairs."

"WILLIAM H. LANGDON, District Attorney."

Last night Heney said:

"I would not have consented to take office as assistant district attorney with a view to probing municipal graft and lawlessness in this city until I was assured of the assistance of Detective Barnes. The value of the work and the ability Barnes showed in the Oregon land fraud cases entitled him to be considered one of the greatest officers the secret service has ever had. Barnes is familiar with the situation here and knows the enormous difficulties that confront us, but on the whole, I do not think they are any greater than we had to face in Oregon. Unless I felt confident in my ability to succeed in this undertaking I would not go into it, and the same may be said to Barnes."

Heney was asked whether he was not already in possession of such specific evidence of wrongdoing on the part of municipal officers that he was certain of bringing them to justice, but he would not admit that any such evidence has already been gathered. He did say, however, that for some time past both Barnes and himself have been working over the local situation with a view of undertaking the work they have now entered upon.

NEW STAR IN OLD GLORY.

The addition of Oklahoma Territory to the Union has added a deputy as the new star will be the 49th in the line, according to Perry Trenchard in the November Technical World Magazine.

The pattern of the national flag of the future should be definitely settled. The next half century may see a great many new states admitted, and some arrangement must be made so that the stars may be added to the flag without disturbing the pattern. Mr. A. C. Chalmers proposes a design which places thirteen stars, representing the original thirteen States, in a star in the center of the blue field, and makes a circle of the balance of the stars, which, of course, can be enlarged as each new State is admitted.

FEUDIST WAS NOT LYNCHED

Virginia "Bad Man" Stood By the Sheriff.

Mob Was Over-awed By His Display of Weapons In the Jail.

Topoka, Kan., Oct. 21.—The New York World says, in dispatch to the New York Herald:

"The recent death of Elias Hatfield, the noted feudist, closed for all time one of the most cases in which the citizens of various communities have tried to take the law into their own hands and administer the Biblical punishment. 'An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life.'"

Once before in this notorious man's life he figured as the leading character in an attempt on the part of the citizens of Chatfield county, West Virginia, to take the law into their own hands, but the sheriff had an abrupt termination without the accomplishment of the object."

Hatfield's neck was saved by the foresight of Sheriff W. O. Walton of Chatfield county, and the reputation of his prisoner as a desperate man. It was a case in which there were no lacerating wounds, no angry howls from the mob, but in the face of the prisoner, and no shot fired. Through the doors of the jail the crowd gathered once within and immediately withdrew."

Immediately after the shooting of H. L. Ellis on June 1, 1899, Elias Hatfield, fearing the violence that he knew would break out on all sides, took to the mountains in Mingo county and remained in hiding until his voluntary surrender to Governor Atkinson a few weeks later. This took place in a secluded spot in the wilderness of the mountain regions, the governor personally placing Hatfield under arrest."

As a man, the officials placed great confidence in Hatfield, and with a small escort, assigned to attend to his needs, he was permitted to go to his home at once to the jail in Chatfield county."

Although the incident took place within a few hours and Hatfield was safely landed in a strong county jail some miles from that in which lived the friends of the murdered man, it became generally known within a few hours. Talk of mob violence at once arose, and a day or so later Sheriff Walton received an unsigned message stating that a "mob" party would be held that night."

The sheriff, however, was not a man to be influenced by the crude ethics of the rougher element of Mingo county. There was little time left him for official action, although the militia could have been hurried to the scene soon enough to prevent the capture of the prisoner. As a precaution, however, he secured two revolvers, and a rifle and took them to a cell facing the main corridor of the jail. When going to Hatfield's cell he fully explained the danger that threatened."

Hatfield took the matter quietly, but said he would like to have a chance for his life at least."

"You shall have it," the sheriff told him as he unlocked his door and led him to the other cell. Then motioning him inside he added: "We are soon to be in a tight place, Elias. You know these people, and unless I am mistaken, they know you. Therefore, I am giving you what I think best in my power, the chance you ask. In return, I want your word that not a shot shall be fired unless it is absolutely necessary." And the word was given."

That evening there was an unusual silence about the town, an unusual, in fact, that it was a bit ominous, and one could easily have seen that men were gathering in a large crowd at a point several blocks away from the jail, with a determination about their movements that gave an indication of something about to happen. Over in the jail one guard sat near Hatfield's cell and quietly talked with its occupant, while Sheriff Walton sat in his office half reading, half asleep, and ready to act on the slightest provocation. Eight o'clock came and went, with no signs of trouble. They had almost begun to think the affair had been abandoned, when the stillness was broken by the sound of many feet and the hoarse murmur of guff voices outside."

A loud knock brought Sheriff Walton to his feet. "Who is it?" he asked, slowly unlocking the door of the main corridor. "What do you want?"

"We represent the citizens of Mingo and Chatfield counties, sir," was the reply. "We want that prisoner."

The sheriff smiled at the angry faces before him. "I hope, gentlemen, you will fully appreciate the situation before you make attempt to take him. I believe you understand what I have said. The corridor is short, but I doubt if any man can reach the end under the present circumstances."

The leaders stepped on the threshold and sat down. "Calmly sitting in his cell and looking at the other and Hatfield looked on. He was in his hands two vicious-looking knives, a pistol, and on his knees lay a Winchester rifle. Hatfield and these men turned toward each other and looked and passed on, and in a few minutes the mob had disappeared. No one in that crowd was willing to face the steady hand and smile of Elias Hatfield."

CARS WILL NOT TELESCOPE.

All-steel passenger equipment for universal use has been the dream of master car-builders for years, and this dream is about to be realized on all lines included in the vast Harriman system, says J. Mayne Balfour in the November Technical World Magazine.

In his article entitled "All-Steel Railway Coaches," he tells about the gradual perfection of the all-steel car and prophesies that Harriman's lead in the direction of better passenger equipment will be followed by many other up-to-date roads. The Pullman company will be the first to go in line and adopt the all-steel construction. The principal objection to the plan has been the excessive weight of a car made entirely of metal. But experiments developed the possibility of producing a steel car weighing not more than 20 per cent over the wooden coaches. This is done by using lighter plates of greater strength, which are made especially for this class of construction. In view of the demand likely to arise in the near future, many car-building firms are extending their plants to include facilities for the new kind of construction.

MARLBOROUGH UNHAPPINESS

Duke and Duchess Said To Be Quarreling.

Statements That Vanderbilts Have Provided Money Annoy the Duke.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A cable to the World from Paris says: Disagreements between the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, which have been prolonged over a period of eighteen months or more, English society is convinced, will result in their separation unless earnest efforts now being made by the father of the duchess and other relatives result in a reconciliation."

W. K. Vanderbilt, father of the duchess, arrived in London on Tuesday and went directly to the duke, where his daughter is with her mother."

Incompatibility is the only reason assigned for the strained relations existing between the duke and duchess. This became more acute during the past eighteen months and they have been apart for increasingly long periods. The duke's relations with his wife's family have not been cordial for some time, chiefly due, it is said, to the disappointment of his expectations, caused by the second marriage of W. K. Vanderbilt. The duke, according to the counts, is put through with a very an amiable temper and affects dislike for overtures, which is most trying to the duchess, who has many American friends of whom she is fond."

Nothing annoyed the duke so much as the frequently printed reports of his having received magnificent presents from his father-in-law. He never neglected an opportunity to deride these rumors. When the Sunderland house was being built, it was published that this was being done with money furnished by Vanderbilt as a Christmas present to the duke and duchess. The duke, angered by the publication, gave out a sharply worded denial, in which he intimated that Vanderbilt never had given either himself or the duchess anything beyond the marriage settlement."

A cable to the Sun from London says: Reynolds' newspaper prints prominently an announcement to the effect that one of Great Britain's best known poets, who some years ago married an American woman of fabulous wealth, this week formally entered into an agreement with her for separation. The newspaper discloses no names."

In regard to the cause of the rupture between the couple, Reynolds' newspaper says the wife sympathized deeply with a charming young lady on the continent who was a victim of severe domestic trouble and invited her to England, where she became an most familiar terms with the family. After a while the wife noticed that her noble husband was paying the visitor more attention than was necessary and subsequent developments led to the separation."

HARRY K. THAW.

How the Specialists Worked to Determine His Mental State.

Has Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, an "insane eye?" That is what the experts, it is claimed, found nothing particularly abnormal about Thaw's physical or mental make-up until they examined his eyes.

His muscles were in good condition, his pulse regular, his skin sensitive to touch and pain, and the reflex action of certain tendons normal.

These things were not ascertained until much trouble. Thaw has consistently refused to be examined by alienists who were expected to prove his insanity. Not until Mrs. Thaw, his mother, interposed the name of proving his sanity by experts did he consent to an examination.

It is now claimed that these experts will prove before the jury that Thaw has the "insane eye" and that his insanity, while now in the form of independent periods, will eventually take a deeper hold and become visible in other forms.

The examination took place in the corridor of the Tombs prison last week and was conducted by two expert alienists, Dr. Clinton D. Evans of the state asylum at Morris Plains, N. J., and Dr. Charles T. Wagner of the state asylum at Binghamton, N. Y.

Their task was a hard one. It was to make a thorough examination of an unwilling prisoner, to be long and severe, and to prove him insane—to clear to the truth and to earn their fees from Thaw himself.

"You may examine all your phase," said Thaw, sharply. "It's all a lot of rot. I'm just as sane as you are." His voice was morose and shrill.

Then the two alienists began the work which they had to do. Thaw will prove Thaw insane, but which Thaw himself laughs at and calls foolish."

Every step in that examination had to be considered carefully; the least mistake would have caused an angry talk on the part of the prisoner.

The specialists soothed Thaw by saying that at that time, as far as they could see, he was perfectly sane.

As a matter of fact, save for his violent temper, Thaw seemed to be a sane and young man. But the examination was not the less thorough, because the alienists knew full well that a verdict of insanity sometimes turns upon the opinion of an expert or a slight obliquity of vision.

In fact, some alienists assert that all men are more or less crazy. It is not always difficult, therefore, for specialists of world-wide reputation to convince a jury that there is something amiss in a person's mental make-up."

REPUBLICAN PROSPERITY

St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Sums Up Conditions Which Will Make for Victory of the Republican Party.

On every hand Chairman Sherman of the Republican congressional campaign committee sees things today that will encourage him in his work of organizing victory for the party. The cereal crops are larger than was ever known before except in 1905, and the difference between this and that year is slight. The manufacturer and the farmer are complaining that they cannot secure an adequate return for their products. The railroads answer that they are getting better values and cars as fast as the shops can turn them out. They have many orders ahead, some of which can not be filled until the middle of 1907.

From the time around the middle of September, when gold importation set in, something like $250,000,000 of that metal has been imported, and the inflow has not ended yet. From Washington, Chairman Sherman has probably heard the good news that the government's income is steadily gaining on its outgo. The deficit was brought to an end in the fiscal year 1906 and a surplus of $25,000,000 was rolled up. For the present fiscal year, three and a half months of which have expired, the surplus promises to go above $20,000,000.

It will be said by the Democrats that the Republicans are not responsible for the big crops of 1906 which are having such a quickening effect on general trade all over the country. This is true only in part, however. The farmer gets from 20 to 30 per cent more for his grain than he did in Democratic days, and is thus encouraged to plant more of it. Knowing that a good market at big prices awaits him, he is sowing and planting much more than he did a few years ago, and he is paying off his mortgages and improving his land. These changes are one result of Republican sway. As figured by the report just issued by the department of agriculture, the aggregate cereal yield of the country for 1906 is only about 35,000,000 of bushels below that of 1905, which broke all the records. But when the department, a few weeks hence, figures out the farm value of this year's grain crops, it will be found that they exceed those of a year ago. Prices are higher for farm products in 1906 than they have been in many years, and the advance is due to the general prosperity which Republican control of the government has brought. As the country believes that Republican control is going to last for years to come, without any intermission, the prosperity was rising.

Here is where the Republican campaign managers find encouragement in the record of the output of the farms as well as of the factories. Each is an evidence that the outlook is bright for the continuance of Republican sway. The Republican spellbinders can get inspiration from all sides these days. That $6,000,000,000 which, a few weeks hence, the department of agriculture will announce as the value of the products of the farms and plantations for 1906, will be a fine tribute to the tonic effects of Republican control of affairs. The sun shone and the rain fell in Cleveland's days as president. Republican sway has not changed the alternation of the seasons, or altered the law of nature. But Republican sway has given to each worker an increased reward for his work, and has encouraged him to do more and better work. There were good crops during some of Cleveland's panic years, but the farmers got less money for them than they did in the Republican days before and afterward.

Men were just as anxious to work in 1896, but the work was not to be had. Samuel Gompers who is making Democratic speeches in the present campaign, said there were 3,000,000 idle men in the country in 1896, in the middle of the Democratic panic. He would have trouble to find among those who want work, although the population has been increased 10,000,000 since. And yet the sun shone just as brightly in the days of Democratic adversity as it does in those of Republican prosperity. Spring came about the same time then as it does now. But the whole industrial and financial situation has been changed in the interval.

As measured by railway earnings and bank clearings, double as much work is being done in the United States in 1906 as was done in 1896. The rewards for doing the work are greater now than they were then. These are some of the things which are working for Republican success in the present canvass. Chairman Sherman would be justified in directing his spellbinders to claim that the country's prosperity is a Republican asset. It is more than a Republican asset. It is a Republican courage. The country's prosperity rests. This consideration will add hundreds of thousands of votes to the Republican total in the congressional elections of 1906.

Mrs. A. J. Weiner and daughter have returned to Fresno for the winter. They are at present registered at the Hughes.
V. H. Henderson, E. J. Wickson, Ernest A. Denicke, and P. W. Dohmann, of the University of California, are registered at the Sequoia.
Mrs. R. D. Jones and her daughter, Mrs. R. D. Walshaw of San Francisco, arrived last night on the Owl. Mrs. Jones has been visiting in San Francisco about six weeks.
W. R. Williams, who has been through the valley counties in the interest of his candidacy for state treasurer, has gone to Stockton and from there will go to northern and bay counties. He will then visit Southern California.

CLEMENCEAN

IS SUMMONED

He Will Form France's New Ministry.

First Interview Was With Picquart, the Defender of Dreyfus.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—As was expected, Clemenceau, minister of the interior, was summoned to the palace today and entrusted with the task of forming a new ministry.
This afternoon Clemenceau had conferences with his political friends, including Gabriel Picquart, the defender of Dreyfus, who was restored to the army. Clemenceau declares he has not yet offered any portfolio and that he saw General Picquart only for the purpose of obtaining information for certain phases of the army estimates.
It will take him four days to choose his ministers and another four or five days for the new ministry to agree on a program. No appointments are expected until after Clemenceau confers tomorrow with Brisson, president of the chamber of deputies.

Madras Firm Suspended.
LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Times this morning says that Arbuthnot & Co., of Madras, also suspended payment with P. McFarland & Co., the London house of Arbuthnot & Co., whose suspension was announced Oct. 20th. The liabilities of Arbuthnot & Co. are believed to be very considerable. This failure, according to the Times, is not due to recent events in the London money market.

BLIZZARD IN THE ROCKIES

Storm Prevails from Wyoming to New Mexico.

Damage to Sheep Raising Industry Reported—Heavy Snowfall in Denver.

DENVER, Oct. 21.—A general storm prevailed along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains from Wyoming to New Mexico today. Snow has been falling in Colorado almost incessantly for the past twenty-four hours and continues tonight. Suburban electric lines have been operated with difficulty and railroads have experienced delay in running of trains.
As yet no serious results are reported in this section, but from Albuquerque, N. M., comes a report of serious property damage from high winds. The sudden dropping in temperature accompanied by blizzard conditions in Northern New Mexico caused heavy losses to the sheep raising industry. If rumors are correct.
In Colorado the storm extended to the western slope. In the valley around Buena Vista, the snow stands two feet deep on the level, and in the mountains throughout the state the snow varies from two to five feet in depth. Twenty-two inches of snow had fallen at Florence by midnight.
The roof of one of the buildings of the Portland mine gave way from the weight of snow upon it, but no one was hurt.
In Northern Colorado the snow is twenty inches deep and should a freeze follow the storm, considerable loss will result to the potato crop.
Wyoming reports a general storm, which has played havoc with wire communication and is interrupting railroad traffic.
Live stock is threatened with damage from the cold. Train service in all directions is delayed from four to ten hours.

A WELCOME TO THE GJOA

Captain Amundsen's Vessel Was Officially Greeted.

Intrepid Commander Receives News of High Honor From His Sovereign.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Escorted by harbor craft, all kinds and surrounded by a throng of white youths, the staunch little Norwegian ship Gjoa, with her intrepid commander, Captain Amundsen, and crew, was formally welcomed here today.

The wharves were black with a throng of people eager for a glimpse of the famous Arctic explorer and the little vessel, the first to make the Northwest Passage. This afternoon a reception was tendered Captain Amundsen at the St. Francis hotel at which Acting Mayor Gallagher, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California, and President David Starr Jordan of Stanford university were the principal speakers.
Wednesday night a banquet will be given in honor of the Norwegian explorer, at which Governor Pardee will be present.
Captain Amundsen has received a cablegram from Prime Minister Michelsen of Norway, stating that King Haakon will decorate him with the grand cross of the St. Olaf order as an acknowledgment of his distinguished services.
The decoration referred to by the prime minister is the highest honor within the gift of the Norwegian monarch and, with the exception of the prime minister, Captain Amundsen is the only person who has received it during the present reign.
About a carload of samples and specimens of the animal and bird life and minerals discovered on the three years voyage in the Far North will be shipped east.

Captain Amundsen expects to be ready to start east next Thursday. On the way east he will be registered at Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Washington and Philadelphia, where he will speak briefly concerning his voyage.

EXPERT FORGER HAS OPERATED WIDELY

Claiming Relationship to Carnegie, Well Educated and a Linguist He Swindled Many.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—J. H. Langdon, in custody here on information furnished by the police of Baltimore charging him with forgery, is said to have operated successfully in nearly every city in the East. He is said to have swindled many persons in England, Paris and Yokohama by forging the names of Andrew Carnegie, President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad and other prominent men to drafts and checks for large amounts.
Langdon, according to the Baltimore police, is the son of S. T. Langdon, a wealthy business man of Philadelphia. He claims to be a relative to Andrew Carnegie and is said to be a college bred man and a linguist. Through his accomplishments, he met and gained the confidence of some of the most prominent Baltimore families and was able to pass some of the bogus checks without arousing suspicion.
He is said to have served a term in an Ohio prison for forgery in 1896.
SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 21.—Anxiety is felt for the youth Jesse belonging to Major Williams, which left here today with Governor Turrell and his guests. It is supposed the youth reached Saint Simons Island before the storm broke, but definite information is not obtainable.

QUEER ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Wears Chartered Slippers to Grave.
Mrs. Robert H. Snyder of Willow Grove, a few miles west of Vineland, N. J., who died recently, aged 87 years, was buried with her feet encased in slippers she had purchased when a girl of 17 years.

Adventure With a Snake.
Sitting on her porch at Elmhurst, Pa., Mrs. Charles Port felt something tighten around her left ankle. Reaching down, she was horrified to find a snake two feet long coiled about her shoe.
With a cry of terror, she fell into the house, trying to lock the snake out but without success. The reptile only tightened its hold.
Miss Davis, employed in a nearby store, heard the woman's shrieks and ran to her assistance, killing the snake with a shovel.

Divorced in Fifteen Minutes.
At Georgetown, Ohio, October 20th, Jacob H. Robinson, the millionaire mining man and Democratic leader of Clear Creek county, was divorced in five minutes from Nellie Robinson, his helpmate, for the past quarter of a century.

In an effort to keep the matter quiet, a secret session of court was held. It required less than fifteen minutes to call the case, read and swear in the jury, hear a little evidence, and for the plaintiff and order a decree issued. The question of alimony was settled out of court. The divorce was granted on the nominal ground of non-support and desertion.

Woman Has Seven Husbands.
Seven husbands, all living and married, have legal claims upon Mrs. Hannah Chaffee. It is alleged in the confession of her daughter, Mrs. Emily Sherman of Pontiac, Mich. The former is 70 years of age and recently was married to Francis M. Chaffee. She transferred to a daughter some residence property owned by her, and her husband, declaring the transfer without consideration, started a suit in court to have the deed set aside. The consequent investigation turned upon two or three previous marriages of the woman, in none of which were the records showed divorces or deaths of the husbands. The court has ordered an investigation.

Too Much Name.

Desiring to compliment the members of No. 12 engine company for having saved his home from destruction by fire, Henry Gotthardt of Louisville, Ky., declared he would name his most recent son after members of the company. Recently he had the child christened John Smith Paul Graham McKeen George Reuben David McCormick (last name). He said his son was handicapped with the longest name he had ever heard of, but he was Dutch, and would be able on that account to overcome any obstacle that might arise from a name.

Roy Fights Off Wildcat.

Willie Gray, Jr., 11 years old, of Catskill, N. Y., had an unpleasant experience with a wildcat while on his way to visit his grandmother at Haines Falls at night. He had lloitered on the way, and when he reached Paken Grove it was dark. Willie heard a noise in a tree, and the next moment a full-grown wildcat landed on his shoulders and fought to bury his teeth in his neck. The boy battled with desperation and howled for help. Finally he grabbed the cat by the throat and managed to tear it loose and jerk it down the mountainside. He ran to the home of Mrs. Minnie Schape, where he passed the night.

Man Turning to Stone.

Obsessed so that the only movement he is able to make is a slight turning of the head, James C. Wood of Vineland, La., presents a puzzle to the medical fraternity which none has been able to solve. Twelve years ago Wood was attacked by a mysterious disease, which gradually turned his flesh to stone, and for several years was confined to his bed, while the ossification gradually spread until now his entire body is almost as rigid as a rock. A strange feature of the case is that Wood suffers no pain, has a normal appetite and sleeps well.

Widows Stand Together.

"The Widows' Association, Incorporated," has been organized by twenty Chicago widows of various ages for the purpose of bettering the condition of widows.
Mrs. Amelia Tenney of No. 265 La Salle avenue has filed papers with the secretary of state for a charter. She says the first object of the association is to build a "widows' home" where widows can live at a moderate expense, and where their children can be safely reared. Only real widows are eligible for membership. Divorces are barred.
The twenty widows who are planning the home have been organized for almost a year. Mrs. Tenney is president; Mrs. Emma Field is secretary; and Mrs. Emma Wassergard, treasurer.

A Good Fish Story.

A news telegram from Port Jarvis, N. Y., says:
"Wait Tisdell of Sparrow Bush, two miles above here, fished the Delaware for bass with peculiar luck. Going up a rift he saw two large bass and three big eels trying to get up the rift in a narrow passage between rocks. In the rush bass and eels got mixed up, the bass biting the eels in sections and swallowing them.
"The fish, with their sides sticking out full of eels, tried to continue through the passage, but became wedged between the rocks in the shaft. He took them home, cleaned them, and found he had eight pounds of bass and four pounds of eels for dinner."

Happy, Though Married.

Sixty years of wedded life, unmarred by a single quarrel, has made a continuous love story of the lives of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Blakeley, who recently celebrated their anniversary at the residence of their daughter in Chicago.
"If wives and husbands would start out as John and I did there would not be all those unhappy marriages that you hear of so often in Chicago," Mrs. Blakeley said, and her eyes kindled like the eyes of a 16-year-old girl. "I say never have a quarrel and then you will be happy. How to avoid it? Oh, just feel your husband well and kind, or I might make him think he's having his own way. Live within your means."

JOTTINGS FROM THE COUNTRY

Tulare Lake Mecca for Duck Hunters.

News and Personal Paragraphs from Different Neighboring Ports.

LEMOORE, Oct. 21.—A. W. Belknap will erect a two-story brick building on his lot, corner Linden and H streets, this winter. The former place of business was destroyed by fire some time ago.
H. Tolhurst, president of the Empire Land company, came up from Los Angeles Thursday morning and will spend a few days hunting down on the company's ranch.
Since the opening of the duck season the cracking of guns about on the lake would make one think of a battle royal. Early Sunday morning people began to go down to the lake and try their luck, and in some instances a large number of ducks were bagged. Men hunting for the market can be seen in boats and on the morning boat loads of ducks were expressed to San Francisco and more are being shipped every day.
M. C. Carter, the Lemoore fisherman, was in Fresno the fore part of the week transacting business.
W. P. Hays has sold his residence property on Lemoore avenue to William Dunsenberry and will move to Los Angeles.

Clyde Walker, son of Attorney W. H. Walker, is very sick at his home with malaria fever.
S. A. Ellis and family left for San Francisco Wednesday morning. They had been over on their ranch on the West Side for two months spending a vacation.
W. M. Corley came over from the Wheatville country the first of the week and reports everything in his neighborhood moving along satisfactorily.

Miss Carrie Kerley is confined to her bed with typhoid fever and Dr. Burrows, the attending physician, reports her somewhat better.
Elmer Daniels, who tried to leave town the other day without settling with his creditors, was caught at Cochen by City Marshal Dickinson and escorted back to town. After making a satisfactory settlement with his creditors he was allowed to proceed on his journey.

H. S. Weaver left for Oakland Wednesday, having called there by the Seaside Kings of his son.
The winter near this city is running to its fullest capacity. As early as 10 o'clock in the morning a line of wagons loaded with grapes can be seen waiting their turn to be unloaded.
L. T. Belknap, brother of J. W. Belknap of this place, who recently arrived here from Deer Run, Mo., received the sad news that his mother was very sick at her home in the East and for him to come back as soon as possible. Mr. Belknap intended to make an extended visit in this neighborhood, but on account of the serious sickness of his mother he had to change his mind. The Alpha girls gave a "Pumpkin Pie" social at their club house Friday evening.

The J. D. E. S. lodge of this city will give a grand ball in the Lemoore opera house on the evening of October 27th and the W. O. W. band will furnish the music.
L. P. Timmer of Fresno, Republican candidate for sheriff, was in town Tuesday. He had been over in the Wheatville country interviewing voters of that part of Fresno county and also the farmers across the line which divides Kings county from Fresno.

The P. I. company has a force of men at work leveling its land in this city and intend selling it off in town lots.
Constable G. N. Furrish is still confined to his bed with the grippe but is reported to be improving slowly.
Ed Erlanger, the local horseman, received a check for $8 Wednesday from the Hanford Fair association, which was given by the association to the best trotting stallion exhibited at the recent fair. The horse Mr. Erlanger had on exhibition is a full brother to Toggles one, noted California trotter, and "Lightningbug," the stallion name, is considered to be as good as Toggles when he was on the track. Mr. Erlanger has "Lightningbug" in training on the Hanford track and he shows considerable speed.

L. T. Stephenson, who has been doing the gunning at the Italian Swiss winery in this city, received orders the first of the week to report for work at the Eggert's winery in Fresno and to left for there Monday evening.
City Attorney F. J. Walker was transacting business in Fresno Monday, returning home to the evening.
A. B. Arnold and J. O. Taylor of Los Angeles are in town looking over the country and if everything looks right to them they will locate here.

DIAMONDS ARE HIGH.
Twenty Per Cent on Each One Hundred Dollars Added to the Price.
To buy diamonds for holiday presents will cost this year at least 20 per cent more than twelve months ago. Wholesale dealers are now multiplying the retail value of the increased prices which have been made necessary, it is explained, by new conditions in the trade and the demand for diamonds in the style of formal appointments from the London syndicate which controls the output of the De Beers Mining company, Limited.

The syndicate, which had annually declared three or four advances, each of 6 per cent, since 1902, did not do so this year, but diamonds have been going up just as fast. The firms that buy rough stones from the syndicate say that one cause that has been sending up the prices is the unfavorable situation in many shipments.

The stones come in sizes, shapes and qualities that do not yield an cutting as many high class stones in the commercial class as in former years. The stones most sought by the jewelers are from one-half to one carat and one-half carats. The diamond syndicate says that they are getting many large stones, in clearing which there is much waste, and that the proportion of slopes with flaws and cloudy spots which must be eliminated by cutting is larger than formerly.

Another element is labor, and according to manufacturers they now pay much higher wages than a year ago, while the men do not cut and polish as many stones. A Nassau street man, manufacturer said as to this:
"The cost of polishing diamonds is double what it was a year ago. All of the manufacturers joined in giving to the men on their request salaries which were based on the amounts they earned by the piece. That level represented their earnings when they worked under full steam, each man having an incentive to polish as many carats of diamonds as possible, because this meant the maximum pay."

"While we are paying salaries on the high level corresponding with such earnings, the men who worked sixty hours a week under the old system now work forty-eight hours. Each polisher formerly used six tools, thus polishing that number of diamonds at the same time, but now the union allows the use of only four tools at a time."

"The men without the old stimulus of having their pay depend on the number of carats they polish, do not work as quickly as before. They do not deliberately shirk any work, but they are incentive to fast work acts on them as it would on any other class of men. While polishing counts as double what it did, other branches of labor have not advanced quite so much, but altogether it costs a New York manufacturer at least 75 per cent more than it did a year ago to cleave, cut and polish diamonds."

Outside of New York, practically no diamonds are cut in the United States. Many of the dealers who buy stones cut and polished in Europe have recently returned after making their annual purchases and tell the same story of advancing prices as is heard from the American manufacturers. The apportionment of stones by the syndicate whose control of the trade is world-wide, is said to be even less favorable to the big factories of Antwerp and Amsterdam than to those of New York.

Labor is not getting somewhat higher wages in these cities. Several days ago, Edward Van Dam, who has shops in Antwerp and Amsterdam as well as in New York, sent his cable directions to advance wages from 5 to 10 per cent among his European employees who had gone on a strike.

So vast has been the gains in value that some stones bought in the market for $10 a carat back in the early '80s, are now among the choice specimens of blue white diamonds which, if put on the market, would bring $500 a carat.—N. Y. Sun.

THE FAR EAST.
China No Longer Sleeps, But Is Up and Doing.
The Chinese court is one of the proudest in the world, honestly believing itself to be without a rival in dignity or in resources or in a kind of divine right to premar among the nations. It is impatient of threats from neighboring states as once were of threats from European colonies, and though, owing to a long tradition of military weakness, it lacks even the trickery of other than defiance, it would, if it dared, prefer to wrap itself up in a kind of dead pride, and leave the neighboring states to complain as long as they pleased without result.

It has always hitherto considered an appeal to force as vulgar and violent, but the success of the Japanese, hard in importing western civilization and winning battles, has led in Peking as the solvent of those old prejudices. The situation was govern forced by the wounded pride of their subjects, who rage at their subservience, are willing to accept reforms, but intend by reform something very different from the meanness usually assigned to the west in Europe.

They are seeking for more independence; that is, for better means of defense or punishing pressure from the barbarian world. If they could but secure an army and a fleet the those of Japan, they would be content to leave all other reforms unthought.

The Hanyu movement, which was a spontaneous movement for more independence, was an effort to compel the court to rid itself of the foreigner and his influence. It is an army, not a constitution, which the government general of Peking is striving to found, and it is by no means clear that he will not succeed in founding it. Some European observers say his new force, 120,000 strong, are excellent, well drilled, fairly equipped, and provided with all necessary munitions.

China has large undeveloped resources, and a middle power, even though small, is a most efficient instrument for paying taxes. The court, too, has had two experiences which have dissipated many of its halting fears. It used to dread Russia exceedingly, and it has seen the Russian armies driven back by Mongolia. The court's own subjects, men, indeed, whom it has been taught by tradition

CHOLAS MADE BLOODY RIOT

Los Angeles Policemen Fought Mexican Roughs.

Baseball Dance Was Turned Into Brawl and Cutting Affray Followed.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—In a bloody riot on Mission road, near Mince street, this afternoon, where two policemen dealt alone with twelve Mexican roughs, one man was probably fatally wounded, another severely cut, and one of the policemen saved the life of the other, his brother. The injured man was John Carpenter, who was stabbed in the head, suffered a fractured skull and will likely die at the county hospital, and Pedro Borge, slashed about the head and lamed in honor of an amateur football club was in progress within a fenced enclosure in the neighborhood. A dozen "cholas," members of the notorious "coyote gang," which has long infested this city, attempted to break up the dance and were repulsed. Five of them then attacked the nearby cottage home of John Carpenter, and the latter was beaten and stabbed, allegedly by Antonio Sanchez, Patino and Fred and Frank Arguello, brothers, attempted to arrest five "coyotes," and a desperate riot was begun, the seven roughs coming to the "coyotes'" assistance with knives, clubs and stones.

As one of the Mexicans was about to plunge the blade of an eight-inch knife into Antonio, Fred Arguello, Frank Arguello knocked him senseless with his gun. Others of the attacking party were beaten up by the officers with guns and knuckled over a hind to the floor of a ravine 100 feet below. Eventually, the five ringleaders of the riot were subdued and brought handcuffed to police headquarters.

Tonight a general round-up of suspicious characters is being made in Soto's town, where stabbing and shouting affrays have happened frequently of late. Thirty arrests were made before 10 o'clock today.

FAIR WOMAN.

Her Legal Status in England and Debits She Can Avoid.

The history of the favored position which married women occupy in our legal system is not without interest. Until comparatively recent times a married woman was considered in the eye of the law as no more capable of owning or dealing with property than an infant or a lunatic. All she possessed when she married became her husband's. She may make contracts, she may sue and be sued in her own name. In fact, she now enjoys all the rights of an unmarried woman.

As the result of a series of acts of parliament, passed during the last seventy years, married women have gradually emerged from this position of legal disability. Now a married woman may possess separate property of her own, and deal with it quite independently of her husband. She may make contracts, she may sue and be sued in her own name. In fact, she now enjoys all the rights of an unmarried woman.

But for some unaccountable reason, the legislature in conferring upon her increased powers and privileges, has not enlarged her responsibility in proportion. Regarded from the standpoint of legal liability, her position still remains in many respects, quite exceptional and anomalous. For example, the wife is entirely exempt from liability to pay for articles which fall within the category of "necessaries" and in the case of ladies in society "necessaries" may include expensive articles of dress or jewelry.

In a recent case a married woman was sued by a large West End firm of milliners and dressmakers for the price of goods supplied. The manager, before opening the account, had made the usual inquiries as to the lady's means, and receiving satisfactory information, allowed her to have the goods on credit. On that footing she dealt with the firm and became a regular customer. The articles which she ordered were charged to her account. She was sent in a bill, and for it while she paid regularly by her own checks. Shortly afterward, the lady's husband, who had been living with a vast show of wealth, was found to be utterly insolvent. He absconded, and the firm sued the lady for the unpaid balance of her account. She refused to pay, on the pretext that she had bought the dresses as her husband's agent, and that she had had her husband's authority to do so. But the firm knew nothing of this. The only indication they had received of her having a husband at all was the fact that she gave her married name—a fact which, as was pointed out by one of the judges, was entirely consistent with her being a widow, and eventually it was held that the lady was not legally liable.—London Spectator.

HOW A DREAM CAME TRUE.

It seems almost incredible, that farming lands which were bought at only $4 an acre, should, within a few years, have been disposed of at seventy-five times that price. Yet Edith Nell Perkins, in her article, "How a Dream Came True," in the November issue of the Technical World Magazine, tells the story. Referring to the California Delta, she says: "The soil is rich, the climate genial, and, with abundant water supply, all the conditions of rich agricultural and horticultural development are fulfilled. Nor are the results at all in doubt—for, in instances that might be cited, the fruition of actual demonstration has followed close upon the heels of anticipation and effort. In one case, a man whose payments on his land and water rights had aggregated $81 an acre, disposed of his holding at $300 an acre, and, in addition, sold his standing crop of alfalfa at $50 an acre, the purchaser agreeing to harvest the crop."

Train Struck Traction Car.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 27.—An incoming Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton passenger train collided with a traction car at a crossing three miles west of this city tonight. One of the engine crew and two passengers were instantly killed and a dozen injured.

BUILDING OF NEW RAILWAYS

A few years ago it was said, and believed, that the United States had about enough railway mileage; that in some sections there was too much. Hereafter, it was said, there would be little railroad building—no filling in of gaps, running out of feeder branches and the like. The days of great railroad building were over. How shortsighted these predictions were appears from a current railway history. With all allowances for fantastic projects and for those of promoters whose real aim is not to build railways, but to get the public's money for pieces of paper or to be bought off, the view of Reivers that there are building or are seriously planned on this continent no less than 22,000 miles of railway, calling for the expenditure of about $1,500,000,000.

Much of the expenditure will be in the East, and not so much on new lines as on improvements of old ones. The tunnels and terminals which the Pennsylvania and the other great trunk lines are making under and in New York City will cost for nearly $200,000,000. Other improvements in the East will double the outlay. These are projects based on solid business calculation of certain returns. For the romance and adventure of the railway as we must turn to the Southwest and the Northwest.

Sometimes the new railway comes from the discovery that natural conditions are not as traditionally supposed to be. The line now pushing along the Texas coast from Galveston to the Rio Grande is the result of such a discovery. For more than 400 years the southwestern triangle of Texas has been set down as a desert. A railway manager seeking territory out of which to make a railway shoestring running down from Colorado justly exploded the tradition. All the country needed to be another Southern California was water. His prospectors found under the biggest artesian well reservoir in the country. Since then the name of B. E. Youkum has been one to conjure with in Texas.

The notion that railway competition had ceased under the domination of the "community of interest" idea finds no justification in the Pacific Northwest. E. H. Harriman may have thought he had a railway control of San Francisco as perfect as that of Portland. It is threatened on one side by the Western Pacific, by which George J. Gould is making more true the dream of a railway actually from ocean to ocean under one control, and on the other the line for which James J. Hill is blasting a way through the cliffs of the Columbia at a cost of more than $800,000 a mile. In reply Mr. Harriman is pushing the Union Pacific into Seattle at a cost of $10,000,000 for terminals and approaches alone.

Mr. Harriman also announces that more than 1000 miles of railway will be built in Oregon—crossing the great vacant space between the Oregon Short Line and the Shasta route from east to west. Meanwhile the men who own the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul find that, owing to the aggressive policies of Mr. Harriman and Mr. Hill, their road was becoming merely a local railway in the Central West, as pushing their own line to the Pacific at Seattle—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PUTTING LAW IN CONTEMPT

As so much of the argument presented in opposition to the reform of criminal procedure seems thus to be beside the point, we put the issue once more. In American criminal courts, whenever error is found, unless it is positively proved that prejudice does not exist, prejudice will be presumed. In other words, every convicted criminal can take advantage of every technical error of the court, no matter how slight or unimportant, unless the community can affirmatively prove that it did not work any detriment to the prisoner. The question is this: Are the criminals of America, rich and poor, murderers, thieves, embezzlers, train wreckers, sailboats at women and little children, entitled to this privilege? Are those accused of crime and wrongly entitled to this privilege? Jurists of the highest standing, judges of the Supreme court, lawyers of experience and ability, agree in asserting that no one is entitled to such a privilege as that.

What a boon this privilege conveys to criminals may be gathered from two recent cases. One of these, a murder case in Alabama, was cited in the New York Law Journal last week. The defendant, as the court admits, "killed the deceased by cutting him with a knife." Yet the conviction of the prisoner was reversed. Why? Because it was shown that the prisoner was not guilty, or that some error in the trial was clearly detrimental to the prisoner? Not at all. Simply because a witness was allowed to include in her testimony the statement that after it was found that the defendant was out of the people around there hallowed "Polly" killed the murder! Murder! Murder! Polly! The court, ruling as to the admission of this testimony, decided that "it was necessary to include the words of the jury." The other case, reported in the Detroit Free Press, is that of a man convicted of killing his brother-in-law, but released on appeal. Was the prisoner proved to be innocent? Not at all. The judge before whom the man was tried declared two juries after what the Supreme court considered an inadequate effort to get them to agree. The Supreme court, in handing down its decision, declares: "It is unfortunate that the respondent shall escape punishment for his crime." It is such cases as these that are creating not only among the common people, but also among those learned in the law, a demand for the reform of American criminal procedure.—The Outlook.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 27.—It is now planned to have the balloon race, originally scheduled for yesterday, take place tomorrow, when two balloons, the Venture and the Eagle, will be sent up. In the Venture, piloted by Charles T. Welch, will be Major Samuel Behr and Captain Charles E. Chandler of the regular corps, who have been especially detailed by the war department to attend and report upon the trials. The Eagle will carry Louis Stevens as pilot and Captain Homer Wedger, president of the Aero Club of America.

LUMBER SHIP TOTAL LOSS

She Went Ashore In Fog Off Cape Henry.

Life Savers Rescued Captain and Crew—Storm Worst In Twenty Years.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27.—The steamer George Farwell, timber hauler, from Jacksonville, Fla., for New Haven, is ashore off Cape Henry and probably will be a total loss. All aboard were saved. Captain J. H. Chisholm and his crew of fifteen men being landed today by the life-saving crews from the Cape Henry and Virginia beach stations.

The steamer, laden with 575,000 feet of cypress timber, went ashore in a gale last night. She left Jacksonville October 12th. From the start she encountered heavy head winds and was forced to go far out of her course. Captain Chisholm describes the storm of Friday as the worst in his twenty years' experience along the Atlantic coast. Early in the evening, at that time a dense fog was gathering, soon it obscured the beacon and the noise of the wind and sea prevented the warning siren at the station from being heard.

The life savers hurried to the scene. On the second shot from the line gun the crew of the steamer caught the line and before 1 o'clock in the morning twelve seamen had been hauled through the surf in the breeches buoy. There were left aboard Captain Chisholm and the first and second officers. They hauled the last man to the shore and refused to come ashore, so the life savers had to stay by Ontario beach all night. At daybreak all the baggage of the crew was hauled ashore and then the three men made the journey to land.

The George Farwell was built in 1892 at Marine City, Mich., and is owned by J. C. Turner & Co. of New York.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF RICH ECCENTRIC

Wealthy Man of Norfolk, Va., Was Found Dead Starved In a Chair.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27.—E. W. James, a member of clubs of Norfolk, Richmond and Baltimore, said to be worth $500,000, was found dead in a room of the old James mansion here today. Death occurred over a week ago and was asphyxiation. The police are investigating his death.

James lived alternately at clubs at Westmoreland, Richmond and Baltimore. He used a room in the mansion here as an office, but did not sleep in the building. His habits were queer, according to Joe Wright, a negro servant, and he said James always locked himself in whenever he visited the mansion.

James was last seen alive on October 11th, when he entered the house. Today the negro discovered through a window the body of his employer in a sitting posture in a chair at his desk. A gas jet in the room was wide open.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—The unknown man who was shot and killed at Pacific and Kearney streets shortly after 12 o'clock last night by Edward Matthews, a negro, has been identified as Robert J. Harl, a brick layer, Matthews is in prison.

HOW AL ADAMS DEFIED THE LAW

"Al" Adams, formerly notorious as a promoter of the policy game and who committed suicide in New York last week, was, in the language of the Detroit News, "tried and condemned himself and inflicted capital punishment." Forty years ago he was a railroad brakeman, but he had a strong gambling instinct and soon got up a position to rise rapidly in the policy game among the policy gamblers of New York. In this pursuit he acquired wealth, and even to the time of his death, he was many times a millionaire. His many chief operations were in New York, the press of other states comment widely on his spectacular career and his sudden ending. The Richmond and Manchester News Leader, for instance, has this to say:

Adams, like many another man who has gone the same road ahead of him, believed that he was strong enough to defy the public and the law indefinitely and be exempt from punishment. His policy games were in every hole and corner of New York, especially in the districts where the poorer people lived. His income was thousands of dollars a day. He had a complete organization of runners and agents, and through his political influence was vast. The disreputable, dark and criminal side of life in the great city were as familiar to him as his hand. He was said to own a number of police officers high in the department. His position doubtless seemed to him to be invincible. Adams, like many another man, found that many of his working weeks were kept in poverty and misery degraded by habitual patronage of the policy shops. He determined to fight the policy king. The fight lasted a year or two and was waged in many ways. Adams was in such close touch with the police that raids on his shops were betrayed in advance almost invariably. Evidence would be gathered and would disappear. Witnesses would vanish and memories would become suddenly treacherous. Adams felt so secure that he laughed at the men who were pursuing him and incidentally joked them. Yet, just as happens always in such cases, the end came at last. Evidence was secured and made to stick.

His attorney Jerome stuck to the track like a trained bound. The battle in and out of court was one of the longest and most fiercely contested in the city's criminal history. Adams was convicted on a second or third trial and then fought the case all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States; but Judge Sings went, a marked, beaten, wrecked and disgraced man. It is said that the bitterest sting to him was in the fact that he had several children in whom he had given the highest education and who were now out of the country, associating with the people they would choose, by their father's infamy.—Fitts Digest.

MINING IN ALASKA IS ROMANTIC STORY

From $2400 In 1895 Value of Output Grew to $15,000,000 In a Decade

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—No romance is keener than the story of the mining industry in Alaska during the last decade. It is estimated roughly by the increase in the value of its annual output from $2400 in 1895 to more than $15,000,000 in 1905.

The gold production of 1905, according to reports of the United States geological survey, was increased by 60 per cent over 1904.

An important fact in the advancement of Alaska's mineral industry during the last decade, says the report, is the great reduction in mining companies that has taken place during this period.

BRAM STOKER AND IRVING

Interesting Book Published By MacMillans.

Man Who Knew Great Actor Intimately Tells of His Big Fight.

New York, Oct. 15.—There are heroes whom the world does not recognize until it is too late to pay them any but posthumous homage. Here is an instance, as every American will admit. Last Saturday was the first anniversary of the death of Henry Irving, the greatest English actor since Garrick, and the Macmillans have today published Bram Stoker's "Personal Reminiscences" in both England and the United States.

In his way it is an incomparable work—a fitting monument duly planned and reared by affection and in sound discretion to the memory of one of the most remarkable figures of the Victorian era. "Imaging," says a writer in the New York Commercial, "a biography of David by Jonathan, of Castor by Pollux, of Aeneas by Aeneas, and such a thing would be on all fours with Stoker's biography."

Mr. Stoker presents an amazing wealth of readable gossip in his two handsome volumes, illuminated by illustrations that show Irving in a great variety of suggestive poses, and there is a deal that is delightful about Ellen Terry, whom he calls the greatest actress of her day, and a very striking portrait of her at the age of 17. But, for one, I think the revelations absolutely novel to the general public concerning the conditions of health in which Irving struggled through the last seven years of his splendid and strenuous career and the most impressive part of the whole work.

All the world recalls that in 1898 Irving was stricken down with pleurisy and pneumonia. His life was despaired of, but he got to his feet again, and thereafter achieved some of his greatest stage triumphs. It was in the following year that he made the American tour of twenty-nine weeks in which he realized the amazing total of over half a million dollars. To be exact—$371,152.50. Just previously he had made a five weeks' tour in the British provinces.

Secret of Malady.

New here is the attack of the story: At the time of the attack he was in his sixty-first year, and from that date onward he suffered from a growing malady which the physicians he consulted did not understand. It was not until more than six years later, in February, 1905, when he fell fainting in the hallway of his hotel at Waterbury, after a performance, that he went into the hands of an expert, who ascertained the secret of his trouble. I quote from Mr. Stoker:

"For more than six years, ever since the attack of pleurisy and pneumonia, Irving had been coughing up pus from an unhealed lung. I ask no pardon for giving these medical details. It was prudent to be silent all these years; but the time has gone for such reticence. It is well that the truth should be known."

Month by month the weakening expectation increased, till in the last three years he used some five hundred pocket handkerchiefs in each week. Such a detail is a somewhat sickening one even to read—what must it have been to the poor, brave soul who through it all had so to bear himself as to conceal it from the world? "I ask no pity for him," says Mr. Stoker, "but to ask for pity and to deserve it are different things."

I had the pleasure and honor of Irving's acquaintance in London and New York during the last three years of his life. There was always a certain shortness of breath, and a peculiar movement of the hand over the mouth very frequently. The critics called the latter a "mannerism." They knew better now. And at 68, and in such circumstances he was still fighting, fighting gloriously, and swooning after every battle. If that was not moral, as well as physical heroism, worthy of admiration, what would be? And where is the Ovar theory in the presence of such a fact?

Terry to Visit Los Angeles.

Of course the presence in this city of Henry B. Irving, the eldest son of the "reigns of the Lyceum," lends especial interest to the "reminiscences." Another reason for their prominence is the fact that Charles Frohman has promised the appearance of Ellen Terry in this country this winter. She will make a tour of the country, going as far as Los Angeles, if the program is carried through as now arranged.

Mr. Stoker's admiration for her is unbounded and he is unquestionably the man to write her biography. But he has in view a book of her own. The allusions he makes to her are quite the gems of the work apart from those hearing directly upon Irving. Miss Terry years ago found a name for Stoker—a big man with a big voice and a big manner—which was characteristic. She called him "Mammoth." He took from the outset the role of the "big brother," and says: "I have no word to commend adequately to tell the kindly feeling which I have always had for the delightful creature."

"Of the causes of the separation he did not cease with their artistic comradeship, but continued to the very day of his death. No reference is made to Lady Irving or, if there be one, I have not been able to find it. But Irving's life, according to his biographer, was 'desolate and lonely' in the main—'so lonely that in the midst of my own sorrow I could not but rejoice at one thing: for him there was now peace and rest.'"

Irving had a fondness for studying the habits of monkeys and on one occasion went to see the famous chimpanzee, "Jack," a monster, at large on a table at the moment, was in the act of taking its favorite tipple. The keeper, to show his control of the animal, took the glass of drink from its paw and pretended to sip. The monkey sat grim and watchful. "Let me see if he will let me have some," said Irving. The actor took the glass from the pan and actually let the lioness touch his lips. With a wild speech the chimpanzee clutched Irving by the throat. "The brute was so strong and savage that it might have torn out the windpipe as a bird could have been raised," instinctively Irving did the only thing that could be done—raised his

NEW OPPORTUNITIES IN FORESTRY SERVICE

Where are all the young men who like to work in the fresh air, tramp about, and who are not afraid of cold or hard outdoor work, says Guy E. Mitchell in his article "A New Outdoor Profession" in Technical World Magazine for November. Here Uncle Sam is willing to pay high salaries to young fellows who can qualify for positions in the government's brand new profession, forestry, but he cannot find enough men who can do the work. In President McKinley's first administration, $30,000 was the annual appropriation for the forestry service; today some $2,000,000 is being annually spent in protecting and preserving the forests. It is a new profession, a new field, in this country, and has developed even to what it is today almost entirely within the past eight or ten years. Who ever gave our trees a thought ten or twelve years ago? Trees? Why, they were things to be cut down, gotten out of the way. Now lumbermen, paper manufacturers, railroads, telephone companies, farmers even, are beginning to realize the importance of the question. What will become of our forests? Forestry is a field which is widening every year. Each year congress increases its appropriation for the cause. Where ten years ago there were some fourteen men connected with the service, there are now over 1400 men employed in the bureau of forestry. Here is an opportunity for young men, and many colleges are offering special courses in this work so that their students may qualify by competitive examination. The future of the profession is assured, but where are the men?

HOMESTRADS FOR THE ASKING.

The United States service for reclaiming arid lands expects to redeem a total area about equal to that of the state of Wyoming, or more than twice the size of Ohio—all of which will become available for the production of crops and the maintenance of a prosperous population, says Robert Franklin in the November issue of Technical World Magazine. His article "Homesteads for the Asking" is a startling account of the fine lands that are open to settlers, which Uncle Sam will give free to those who wish to make their homes in the country, but which are neglected and ignored by the tolling masses of the great cities, who should be only too eager to grasp the opportunity. He tells of the great irrigation projects on foot in the West, by which millions of acres will be reclaimed for the farmer. He tells many interesting stories of government engineers and irrigation men—how they traveled unknown canyons and traversed miles upon miles of land without water or food, in their efforts to ascertain the best way of getting water to the settlers. The whole article is a stirring tale of endeavor upon the part of the government which has opened tremendous opportunities for the farmer. Eventually some 60,000,000 acres of desert lands will be conveyed in this manner into the richest kind of farming territory.

How to Cure a Cold.

The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. Hall of Madera, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me. For sale by all druggists."

PHILIPPINE LIASION ENDED IN TRAGEDY

Army Deserter Tried to Kill Woman
He Had Pursued and Committed Suicide.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—Samuel Becker, declared by the authorities to have been a deserter from the United States army, in a room of the Berkeley hotel, 208 South Main street, last night shot Mrs. Pearl Kirkpatrick, and killed himself. The woman, according to the police surgeon, is not dangerously wounded.

The tragedy had its beginning in a Philippine friendship. Mrs. Kirkpatrick, a daughter of Omaha parents, was living in the Philippine Islands with her husband. She separated from him there, say the authorities, and formed the acquaintance of Becker. When a few months ago she had with him, he deserted from the army at Olongapo, in order to follow her to the United States. Arriving in San Francisco, he gave himself up to the commanding officer there and was punished for his desertion by a sentence.

Upon receiving his liberty he learned that Mrs. Kirkpatrick had gone to Los Angeles. Again he deserted, followed her here, sought her in the Main street lodging house, shot her and then committed suicide in her presence. The bullet that wounded Mrs. Kirkpatrick entered her back.

NEW FOOD LAW REGULATIONS

Labeling and Use of Brands Is To Be Honest.

Be So Designated—Drugs and Preservatives.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, today promulgated the regulations under which the recently enacted pure food and drug act will be enforced. The commission appointed to prepare the regulations consisted of Dr. H. W. Wiley, of the agricultural department; S. N. D. North, of the department of commerce and labor; and James J. Gerry, of the treasury department.

In a letter to the secretaries of the several departments they say their agreement on the regulations was unanimous. To the regulations secretaries Wilson, Metcalf and Shaw have given their approval.

The section of the regulations respecting the labeling of products requires that the ingredients of the package shall be stated so that the purchaser may know precisely what he is buying.

In the matter of coloring, the requirement is made that no ingredients known to be deleterious to human health shall be used by manufacturers. This regulation applies with particular force to the manufacture of candies.

Adulterations, particularly of dyes is prohibited, but standard drugs will not be considered adulterated provided they are branded so as to show their actual strength or purity.

Poisonous or deleterious preservatives shall only be applied externally and shall be of a kind that will not permeate to the interior of the product and such preservative must be of such character that it will not render the food products inedible.

Misbranding of food or drug products is guarded against particularly by the name of the product and the place of the manufacture and must show whether the article is a compound, mixture or blend, and must designate the ingredients and proportions in the case of drugs and foods. The use of any false or misleading statement, design or device on the label is specifically prohibited.

Champagne is required to be labeled "American champagne" or "California champagne" so that the purchaser, while he knows that he is getting a certain kind of wine, knows also that the wine is made in America, not in France. The regulations apply to other products in a similar way.

It was the effort of the commission to insure to the purchaser of any food or drug product absolute purity.

Napoleon Bonaparte showed, at the battle of Austerlitz, he was the greatest leader in the world. Ballard's Snow Liniment has shown the public it is the best liniment in the world. A quick cure for Rheumatism, Sprains, Burns, Cuts, etc. A. C. Pitts, Rensselaer, N. Y., says: "I use Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family and find it unequalled for sore chest, headache, corns, in fact for anything that can be reached by a liniment." Sold by Geo. H. Moore.

NEW YORK LIFE'S CAMPAIGN METHODS

Superintendent Kelsey Says So Long as Company Complies With Law It Is Safe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—B. Seng, manager of the international policyholders' committee, today received from Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey a letter in reply to several complaints against the campaign methods of the New York Life Insurance company. The letter says:

"If the New York Life company complies with the statutory provision for sending out official statements and does not use the funds of the company in promoting the election of the administration tickets, this department cannot prevent those favoring the administration ticket from sending out at their own expense such campaign literature as they choose.

"The question of wrongfully using money of policyholders and of securing assistance from agents under official license are under investigation."

NOTICE OF STREET WORK.

Notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 15th day of October, 1906, the Board of Trustees of the City of Fresno, State of California, did at its meeting on said day adopt a resolution of intention, No. 51, to order the following street work to be done in said city, to-wit:

That the Artificial Stone Sidewalk six

(6) feet in width be constructed on Blackstone Avenue from the North line of Stanislaus Street to the South line of Belmont Avenue (excepting such portions of said street as have been previously paved with artificial stone sidewalk) and that sidewalk be constructed in accordance with the specifications for said work on file in the office of the City Clerk of said city.

One (1) brick culvert to be constructed across "C" Street on the south side of said street.

Curb plank to be set on the official grade, with gutters one foot deep on each side of the street, except at crossings; the center of the street to be three inches higher than curb grade and the street bed to have a uniform curve from gutter to gutter. The sidewalks of said street, between the same limits, also to be graded to the official grade thereof, except where already paved or planked. BUOY MESSAGES HAD LONG JOURNEY

Set Adrift From San Josef Land In 1901 By Zeigler's Polar Party.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Two buoy messages set adrift from Franz Josef Land by the Balwin-Zeigler polar expedition in 1901 have been found and forwarded to Evelyn B. Baldwin of Kansas, the daughter of the expedition, who is living in this city.

The messages were picked up on July 10, 1901, on Moulton Island by Captain Strengerson of the Arctic whaler "Cliff" and forwarded to the United States state department. They were mailed to Baldwin from Washington and delivered to him today.

The messages are type written on gum paper and show the effects of their journey in the Arctic. The messages were an appeal for a supply of coal, the lack of which forced the expedition to turn back.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Held at St. Paul's M. E. Church in Honor of Mrs. Jefferson Davis.

Memorial services for Mrs. Jefferson Davis were held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Paul's M. E. church. The choir of St. Paul's church sang "Lead, Kindly Light" and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." Walter Olney sang "Abide With Me." Rev. W. B. McElwain, of the Belmont Avenue Presbyterian church, preached a touching eulogy. He referred to the fact that the lady, while the second wife of the great Confederate, was his wife throughout his whole public career as a lieutenant in the Mexican war, as state senator and during the trying years of the civil war. No couple is more typical of the South, he said, than Jefferson Davis and wife, and the South will feel like a family bereft of father and mother. But, like such a family, will think more of the world to come, because of their spirits there; will think more of earth as the abiding place of their bodies; and will think more of life, because of what they have left as a heritage to the people. In reviewing the career of Davis, the speaker said that no one will ever know how much the dignity, strength and nobleness of character shown by him was due to the influence and counsel of his noble wife.

MAID AND THE MUMMY NEXT FRIDAY, EVENING

Before "The Maid and the Mummy," which is to be the regular opening attraction of the fall and winter season at the Barton next Friday night, October 24th, was presented for the first time on any stage, $50,000 was spent by its managers on costumes, scenery, mechanical and electrical effects and properties. With one exception, there has been no parallel in the history of the American stage to this expenditure. However, the wisdom of the managers was apparent for "The Maid and the Mummy" played to $125,000 in fifty weeks last season and the popularity about have been enough to make the author, Richard Carl, independent, rich. So great was the success of this merry mad melodrama in this city that it has been secured for a return engagement this season. The piece returns with practically the same cast as last season, but with a handsome, shapely and brotherly chorus that, two new songs have been added, and some new jokes and dances interpolated by Mr. Carl. The sale of seats for the engagement will open at the Barton box office tomorrow noon and at 10 o'clock.

RAISINS HAVE REACHED 5 CENTS

First Time In Seven Years Top Price Attained — Kearney Estate Raisins to Be Sold to Highest Bidder — Crop In Hands of Growers Amounts to 3000 Tons—Thousand Tons Going Out Daily.

For the first time in many years raisins have gone to 5 cents in the market here. This has been the goal ever striven for by the various raisin associations and never attained, and it is perhaps the irony of fate that this maximum bonus has been realized in a non-association year. Some say that it is due largely to the fact that economic laws were not tampered with. However this may be, the interesting fact is that raisins have gone to a nickel a pound. This is the first time in seven years that the price has ever reached the 5-cent mark. Toward the close of the first or second year of the association and when 3 1/2 cents were paid for a few raisins, but at that time those who bought at that figure lost money.

Last Saturday 5 cents was offered and a few small lots were sold at that figure, but the feeling is that from now until the end of the month the remainder of the first crop in the hands of the growers will be cleaned up at 5 cents for standard goods.

No all the packers are playing the same at these dizzy figures. Several having virtually withdrawn from the market, but those that are buying are paying top notch prices.

The amount of the first crop still in the hands of the growers is estimated at 3000 tons and at 5 cents a pound that would mean $15,000,000 to distribute. That includes the crop of the Kearney estate, estimated at 500 tons, manager Friselle has asked bids on this block of raisins, the bids to be received on the 20th inst. Packers freely admit that the raisins will bring 5 cents or better.

A well-known packer, discussing the situation yesterday, said: "The market has been ranging between 4 1/2 and 5 cents, with some goods sold at the higher figure. From the selling standpoint the price is 4 1/2 cents, or should be, but for those who want the goods for any reason, either because they sold short or have heavy orders for fancy layers. The fact of the matter is that those who are buying raisins are paying the growers' price. A good deal of the business that is now being done represents sales made five and six months ago. New business with cash prices 4 1/2 and 5 is mighty hard to get. Those that must have raisins to fill orders are ordering. The market is absolutely firm, the crop is nearly all sold and there is no danger of a drop.

Asked for the reason of the high prices, the packer said: "The first place the foreign crop was ruined, the old crop in this country was cleaned up dry and a lot of goods were sold in the early season at comparatively low figures. The packers made money on a rising market and kept buying for more."

Local deliveries are well in now. The great rush of teams to the packing houses, the blocking and the waiting is over, and the teams now hauling have less trouble getting up to the packing houses to deliver the goods. Raisins are going out at the rate of 1000 tons, for fifty cars of 20 ton capacity, a day. In addition to the usual trouble with lack of cars, the packers had to contend this year with a shortage of labor. The demand for lumber and the high prices have caused the mills to devote to other uses logs usually cut up for shooks. This scarcity was so serious for a while that steamers in some of the houses were shut down. Of the raisins going out at least two-fifths are in sealed form. The demand is so great that many goods are being rushed out in straight cars, although assuredly are still popular.

The second crop is being made mostly in the Valencias, which are bleached, bring from 3 1/2 to 4 cents.

LOSE GAME IN TENTH

Errors Cost Raisin Eaters Last Game With Seals.

Walters Pitches Great Ball—Overall and Chance to Arrive Thursday — Will Play Sunday.

Had it not been for several human decisions of Bill Perrie, and an error by Bert Delmas and an error by Truck Egan and a hit by Parke Wilson and another hit by Helms Spies, San Francisco might have not won yesterday's game with Fresno and the two teams might have been playing yet with the score 0 to 0.

Harry Walters was on the mound for Fresno and for nine innings pitched the best game ever seen here, striking out seven men and allowing but four walks, three of which were issued by Bill Perrie. Up until that tenth inning the Seals found him for only three sent' batters and he had their veteran strikers fanning the air in vain efforts to locate some of his hot ones. When a man did get on a base, through Bill's blindness, Dastwood would get him at second or a double play would end his chances.

This sort of play kept the fans enthusiastic for nine innings and then came the horrible tenth. Harry was wild and unable to land Irwin in anything that he could see and Irwin walked. Waldbour hit a ball to the center of the diamond and Walters threw it to Casey to get Irwin. There was even time for a double play, but Casey dropped the ball and error one was consummated. Then McClelland put the ball to the same spot and Walters handed it this time to Truck. Still after Irwin. Truck also joined in the game of "humble puppy" and allowed Irwin to get to the bag by dropping the ball. With the bags full, Wilson got a safe hit to right and both Irwin and Waldbour crossed the platter. McClelland was caught, trying to steal third. Spies hit the ball to the center of the diamond and both Cartwright and Walters ran after it. Harry got it and when he turned around to throw it to first there was no one there and he first base was safe with Wilson on second. Wilson stole third when Fresno was napping.

Harry lost control after this awful exhibition by the fielders who were supposed to have been behind him and walked both Spencer and Wheeler, filling the sockets again. Then Mohler flew to Cartwright and Wilson scored. All three dug on bases for Hilderbrand could locate nothing good.

Two phenomenal catches of foul balls saved the Seals in the fourth inning. Doyle started things with a hit to left field and Walters tried to beat it. The ball bounced high and McClelland, who was on the run down the third base line, just caught it in time. Then McClelland knocked a foul ball to the right garden. The hit might have been safe and not the wind carried it outside the white line, but Waldbour was on the run for it and got it in his mitt by reaching out.

Seventy-seven men in the Fresno team had a stolen base to his credit and several times with a man on second and third and only one out, Fresno's batsmen were unable to send a man across the dish.

There are only two more weeks of Coast League baseball here this season. Seattle opens here tomorrow for a series of six games and Portland finishes the season here next week. The Seals went to Los Angeles last night where they will play this week and Portland went to Oakland to cross bats with the Commuters. Next week, Seattle plays at Oakland and San Francisco plays at Oakland.

Both Overall and Frank Chance will be here next Thursday night. Mike got word last night that they are on the way from Chicago and if no accident happens on the road they will be here on the 25th. A big delegation of Chance's home people will be at the train to meet the captain and manager of the National champions. Mike says that both Overall and Chance will play in next Sunday's game.

AT LOS ANGELES—Los Angeles played a snappy, errorless game today, and defeated Portland, 2 to 0. Schlumpf pitched a stellar game, allowing only five hits to the visitors, seven, but the visitors were unable to get around the bases. The only two double base hits of the day were each made by both batsmen. Portland allowed three bases on errors. Score:

SMALL BUNCH WILL SEE BRIGGS TODAY

Crop of Hoboes and Drunks This Week-end Is Somewhat Smaller Than Usual.

The week-end harvest of hoboes for this morning's reception at Judge Briggs' court is somewhat lighter than usual. On last Monday morning there were more than one score of them, but a number of drunks and other minor offenders. This morning there are less than one score, all told.

Of the number are J. Jensen, a drunk; Upson, the police hucker and tenderloin man; J. Hootley, drunk and disorderly; Louis Spivey, a local huckster upon his friends and relations and upon whom hangs an old suspended sentence; James McArthur, John Shadle, John Smith and J. O'Brien, hoboes picked from passing trains; and M. E. Frye, a piratical drunk dragged to jail from the sidewalk.

Jensen was arrested by Officer Bradley on Marlborough and J. streets. He was sitting on the curbstone holding an animated soliloquy on the political situation. He showed fight when the policeman came along, but his efforts at escape proved futile.

Hootley was arrested by Officer Eaves for being drunk and unable to walk home. The same officer soon after took in Jack O'Brien for being without visible means of support and having shaky legs as well. He was looked as a drunken phib.

The others were of the usual type of wretches and drunks.

BLACK SHEEP DISGRACES RESPECTABLE FAMILY

Louis Spivey Comes to End of Tether and Is Arrested to Face Floater Sentence.

Louis Spivey, a familiar object to the eyes of the police, was arrested yesterday by Policeman Aubrey and looked at the jail on a charge of vagrancy. A suspended sentence of six months was passed upon him several weeks ago for general uselessness and he promised to leave town. He went away for a time but returned to prey upon his friends and relatives, and loitered about town according to the report of the police registered at headquarters.

Spivey is a man of ability and is able to earn a good living. He is a strong man in robust health, but hates work. He is connected with a most timable family, several members of which have done everything possible for him, but without avail. The police became tired of seeing him hanging about and finally, last night, Officer Aubrey concluded to arrest him and bring him before Judge Briggs for disposition. He will come up before the police court today.

REGENTS VISIT KEARNEY PARK

Officials of State University Look at New Property.

School and Experimental Farm Will Probably Be Established On Estate.

In order to familiarize themselves with the Kearney estate, which is to be used as a model agricultural school by the University of California, Regents E. W. Dohrmann, Benjamin F. Rush, Thomas J. Kirk, ex-Judge Ernest A. Denicke, Prof. E. J. Wickson, head of the department of agriculture, and acting secretary of the regents, Victor H. Henderson, paid an official visit to the estate yesterday. The visitors were the guests of Regent Dr. Chester Rowell and spent almost the entire day in looking over the magnificent farm that has been given to the state, and the country adjacent. The rest of the day was spent on a trip to the vineyards east of Fresno.

Regent Dohrmann is Red Cross representative in San Francisco, and Regent Rush is president of the State Agricultural Society. Thomas J. Kirk is regent by virtue of his office as superintendent of public instruction.

While the state will not be taken formally by the regents of the State university until the will has been probated in the courts and the estate set apart, the regents are contemplating plans for the disposal of the gift. The general sentiment seems to be that an experimental farm and agricultural school will be established here on that part of the estate which is compact, and that the sections which are scattered will be sold.

All the visitors expressed their appreciation of the possibilities in such a disposition of the estate and state that they were really surprised at the richness of the bequest. The regents of the bequest were the guests of Dr. Rowell yesterday and left on this morning's Santa Fe for their respective homes in the northern part of the state.

The automobiles for the occasion were furnished by Nares & Saunders and Mr. Rogers of Los Angeles. Nares & Saunders' chauffeur had charge of one machine and G. W. Waterman drove the other machine.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS MAKE BIG HIT

Old Time Negro Show at Barton Last Night a Treat.

That the old-time negro minstrel show has not gone out of existence was demonstrated by the performance given at the Barton last night by Richards & Pringle's Georgia Minstrels. While the company was lacking in the old-time lark and wing dancers, it did all the other accessories of the old black face minstrel show and was a treat from beginning to end.

The songs and jokes were told and sung in that imitable way of the real negro which no white minstrel troupe has ever been able to successfully imitate, and there were really new stunts and new jokes all carried off in the negro humor that is funny and wholesome.

"Seven" a song with reference to the completion of the subway and the federal building, was the hit of the first part. The second part was not tire some as is the usual second part of the minstrel show, and went through with a vim and a snap that kept the spectators in a state of laughter.

VICE ADMITS HIS IDENTITY

Had Many Visitors in Madera Jail.

Was Early Recognized by Prominent Madera Man Who Kept His Secret.

MADERA, Oct. 21.—William R. Vice, arrested last night for embezzling between $30,000 and $40,000 from the Union Pacific, today admitted his identity and expressed a willingness to return to San Francisco at once to face the charges. A reward of $1000 was offered for his arrest, and Vice, who took him to San Francisco tomorrow and will claim the money.

The arrest of Vice, alias Thomas R. Ryan, has been the chief topic of conversation here today.

Enjoying the freedom of the sheriff's office at the county jail building, the defaulting agent of the Union Pacific company received many friends who had known him as "Tommy Ryan," and to all he extended the glad hand with the magnetic grasp and hearty shake which has made him popular with all classes alike. During the afternoon he sent for a barber and had a shave and haircut, which materially changed his personal appearance.

With a representative he conversed freely about himself and the circumstances since leaving San Francisco, May 3, 1932. It has been reported that he went to Honduras, but this he denies to be erroneous, as Madera has been his continuous home. Twice he has visited San Francisco since the great catastrophe of April 15th last.

Upon his arrival here, so his story goes, he applied to the Madera Sugar Pine Lumber company for work. He was employed and sent to the sawmills in the mountains, where he counted and piled lumber for several weeks, when he was transferred to the yards at the end of the flume.

Here he was seen and recognized by one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Madera, who had known and associated with William R. Vice in club and sporting circles in San Francisco. The energy and magnetic personality displayed by "Thomas R. Ryan," and his evident sincerity in trying to live a better life evidently touched a responsive chord in the breast of his former acquaintance, for they came in frequent contact without even an intimation of recognition or reference to the past.

"Ryan's" wife joined him quietly after he had been here some time, and they set up housekeeping in a modest way in Hughes addition. They were popular and exchanged neighborly visits with some of the best families in Madera.

"Ryan" left the employ of the lumber company to canvass for the Madera Times, and in this work he proved a great success. He was instrumental in getting out an "immigration edition" of that journal which netted the publisher and himself several hundred dollars. He returned to work for the lumber company, and while there was arrested for petty larceny. It was customary for employers to carry home sack blocks from the box factory as they needed for fuel, and one man had sacked up a lot of blocks for the purpose of making them harder to carry. "Ryan" came along on his way home and took one or two sacks of the blocks, and the man who had sacked them had him arrested. "Ryan" pleaded his own case and was discharged. He then decided to start a law and collection agency, and a few months later he was running the Madera Law and Collection agency.

A week ago, when it became known that "Ryan" was after him, he decided to give himself up, and last Wednesday, Raleigh E. Rhodes went to San Francisco to arrange the matter. He appeared before Judge Shortall and asked that the debt of William R. Vice be reduced to $2500, the sum of $10,000, at which it had been fixed on the 14th of last August, when an information had been sworn to in that court. Rhodes returned to Madera this afternoon, having been successful in completing all arrangements in San Francisco.

In the meantime, "Ryan" had gone to the hills on Thursday morning. He spent Thursday night and Friday night at O'Connell's Saturday morning going to Bellevue. Saturday night he came back to Madera and was met by the Night Watchman, Abe White, at the Southern hotel, just as he was about to retire.

BRAKEMAN INJURED

N. B. Randall Loses Foot While at Work in Railroad Yard.

MADERA, Oct. 21.—N. B. Randall, a brakeman working on the local freight net with a bad accident last night, fell from a switch engine, which crushed his foot. He fell from the engine in some manner and dropped beneath the cars, but escaped death in some miraculous manner. The accident will cost him his right foot as the doctors deemed it necessary to amputate the member after his admission to the hospital yesterday. The unfortunate man was brought to Fresno, where he was treated in the Burnett sanitarium. Besides the injury to his foot, he has sustained a bad shock, and is suffering from internal troubles. Randall was brought in by Conductor Fields. The wound was more his affliction with stoic courage, and made light of his hurt while his foot lay crushed and almost separated from his leg.

SELMA PASTOR GETS A RAISE

The congregation of the United Brethren church of Selma held a meeting yesterday and ratified the action of the trustees in raising the pastor's salary. The membership of the church has been increasing and the outlook is very prosperous. Rev. Charles Westfall is the pastor and, by the action of the trustees, his salary is raised $500.

Many Paid Last Tribute

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—One thousand people attended the funeral in this city today of the late Herman A. W. Hunk, bank president, financier and man of large affairs.

SACKETT CORNELL REFUSES TO PAY RENT

And He Has Stirred Up San Francisco Camps In Consequence.

Sackett Cornell, who had a brief but spectacular career in Fresno, being elected secretary of the Chamber of Commerce about three years ago and resigning before taking the position, has come into the papers again, this time as a refugee in San Francisco, claiming the payment of rent. The call yesterday had the following concerning the incident:

"A refugee who occupies his own flat on an public space is compelled to pay ground rent? That is the question the relief corporation has tackled, and, incidentally, stirred up a deal of trouble."

"Sackett" Cornell, the tall man of Hamilton square, was served with notice Friday night that he would have to pay out for the ground his ten occupies. He stormed relief headquarters yesterday with a protest that he should throughout the building. Mr. Cornell is strong of lung. Lieutenant Scott finally took charge of him, and he left headquarters under the impression that the notice was all a mistake and that he will not have to pay rent. As Major Gaston, formerly superintendent of camps, has gone on record to the effect that Cornell has agreed to pay rent, the end is not yet a sight. Besides, if Cornell does not pay, other refugees housed in the square will refuse to do so.

Cornell and his family occupy a chapter of three floors on the Grace Street side of Hamilton square. He claims to have paid for the material in the tents out of his own pocket and to have in no way received assistance from the relief corporation, further than permission to occupy the square.

"According to Cornell, a policeman seized him Friday night with notice that he must pay ground rent or get out. He refused to do either, and went to relief headquarters yesterday to inquire about it. Lieutenant Scott finally succeeded in pacifying him, just how neither will say, but Cornell states that it was all a mistake" while Scott maintains that "the corporation will not rent only from the cottages it builds."

But over in Hamilton square other refugees are watching the outcome of the trouble as an indication of what their future course shall be. The final disposition of the case may fix the conditions under which the refugees shall occupy the square. If Cornell does not pay, other refugees will refuse to do so. The corporation expects to collect rents about $20,000 a month."

SUSPICIOUS LOAFERS NEAR GUGGENHEIM'S

Doubtful Pair of Strangers Loaf About Packing House and Vanish at Sight of Officer Mochen.

A message was sent in to police headquarters last night by the watchman at Guggenheim's packing house on the Santa Fe saying that a suspicious pair of strangers were loitering about the building. Desk Officer Mochen at once went to the spot and looked over the place and saw in the distance two men, needing from sight in the darkness of night along the track. The men did not act suspiciously, although they got out of sight and evidently disappeared in some house near by. Officer Mochen is inclined to think that the men were not implicated in anything wrong, but might have been a couple of young sparks stopping near the spot which they selected as a rendezvous. That there was, however, something in the suspicion that two doubtful characters had been near the place for no legitimate purpose was shown by the statements of Watchmen J. H. Bennett and N. Pearson, who both said that they clearly saw two men wandering around the packing house in a strange manner. The fact that they lurked in dark corners and made their presence known when hailed by the watchman seems to indicate that their intentions were criminal. The watchman pursued the men as far as possible but had to return to look after the building. They think it highly probable that the men were either looking for a chance of getting into the place, or else men who wanted to work off some grudge against the company by starting a fire.

Officer Mochen, who made a complete investigation of the matter, believes that there is something in the story, but does not fasten blame upon the two men seen near the spot on his arrival. He thinks that the two suspicious men were simply hoboes who drifted down in these parts and who subsequently got away by a freight.

FOREST FIRES IN MONTEREY COUNTY

Farmers Have Abandoned the Effort to Subdue the Devastating Conflagration.

SALINAS, Oct. 21.—Stage Driver Moscop, who runs a stage down the coast between Monterey and Lodi, reports that forest fires rage with unabated vigor. Over 150,000 acres have been burned along Garraquito and Mill creeks, spreading in the direction of Tassajara, a town near Lodi, which is in danger of being totally destroyed.

At Salas's Landing, fences, miles in length, have been destroyed. Stock has been burned and the fire has destroyed the cattle ranges. For over a week ranchers fought the fire and night, but they were unable to make headway that it advanced. It was now 2000 on acre now merely fighting flames near houses. Only a few houses have been destroyed. Only a good rain storm will extinguish the flames.

Mrs. EDDY AGAIN DENIES HER DEATH

Founder of Christian Science Center, Old Story Which Is Being Re-vamped.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—The story that Mrs. Mary G. Baker Eddy of Christian Science was dead, which has often been told in the papers of the country, is again being re-vamped. Eddy, 80, is again being published in a number of newspapers as a Western lady who came to Mrs. Eddy's attention and she has written a Boston paper saying that she is in her usual health. For ten years it has been said at intervals that Mrs. Eddy's death was being concocted by the Christian Scientists.
